Presentation

We present the new issue of the journal Caminhando. In this volume 24, number 2 (2019) we have a dossier whose theme is Pentateuch Exegesis Exercises, organized by scholars Matthias Grenzer (PUC-SP) and Leonardo Agostini Fernandes (PUC-RJ), leaders of the Research Group TIAT (Old Testament Translation and Interpretation).

The dossier is composed of translations and interpretations of Pentateuch narratives, either from pericopes or from panoramic approaches, aiming to contribute to the research of languages, as well as to participate in the debate about the reception of Hebrew Bible/Old Testament texts.

In dialogue with the dossier, but with a more historiographic rather than exegetical depth, this issue of the journal publishes, in the section “Analysis of Research Results”, the development of the arguments of Carolina Campos Alves’s graduation work, co-authored with João Batista Ribeiro Santos, who, in the elaboration of the article, presents the initial results of post-doctoral research on the foundation of sacred spaces in the Levant.

In the “Articles” section we have 4 (four) characteristically representative researches of transdisciplinarity. Marcelo da Silva Carneiro, Veronica Cristina Ruchdeschel and Silvio Cezar José Pereira Gomes, with “Undoing the Gordian Knot. A dialogue between the Law and the Religion about Euthanasia”, postulates on euthanasia. Helmut Renders and Kalindy Hyandra Fiorio, with “The omnipresence of religious art in Methodist Christian education in Brazil between 1890 and 1930: the scope of the phenomenon and its ambiguous meaning”, an article full of imaginary testimonies, addresses the evangelical visual culture.

Still in line with Protestantism, Alonso Gonçalves analyzes, in “Protestant theology of religions: a theo-dialogical horizon”, the production of two Brazilian theologians in the contexts of Latin American theology and the studies of Theology of Religions. Closing the section, Vinicius Couto, in the article “Brief history of the Church of the Nazarene: its origins, heritages and arrival in Brazil”, proposes a historiography of the origins and inheritances of the Church of the Nazarene.

Last but not least, the journal presents a review of the book Temas Atuais de Teologia Wesleyana, written by Anna Flávia Salomão Reis.

We renew the great pleasure of presenting the journal Caminhando, in a new edition, keeping the same pretensions: to say the not yet said, that is relevant in favor of life, not only academic, but that colloquial sapience too. Therefore, we invite you to productive leisure and reading pleasure!
